Miroslaw Magola the Magnetic Man.

Miroslaw Magola (1958 – ), alias Magnetic Man, was born in Poland and is now living in Munich Germany. He claims he can lift objects off the floor and transport them through the air, causing them to stick to his body - all using the power of his mind. "I load myself with energy and I connect myself to it and I'm able to raise objects" . He showed his talent for the first time on the Prosieben German television programme Arabella, the OPRAH of Germany, hosted by Arabella Kiesbauer. Also in February 1996 he was able to preform his unique ability on the UK television live programme Beyond Belief hosted by Sir. David Frost.

His best performance to date was on a Live French television programme 2009 La Soirée de l'Etrange hosted by Christophe Dechavanne and Patrice Carmouze aired on TF1, unfortunately reproduction is restricted by copyrite.

On the History Channel television show "Stan Lee's Superhumans" in September 2010 however, demonstrated changes to Miroslaw Magola's brain waves, skin conductance and temperature. These changes were signifigant and were recorded during one of his demonstrations. He was investigated by Dr. Friedbert Karger of the Max Planck Institute and Dr. David Lewis (psychologist), a neurophysiologist at MindLab, one of the United Kingdom's leading neuro-research centers and Dr. Konstantin Korotkov, professor of Physics at St. Petersburg State Technical University in Russia, however James Randi remains unconvinced that Magola's talent is related to psychokinesis. Randi says that when talcom powder is used Magola will not be able to pick up anything. Mr. Magola has repeatedly challenged James Randi Educational Foundation to give him a chance to win the one million dollar prize using talcom powder on a live TV show, and he has so far to date refused.
